

FEB. 21, 22

"FIRST LEAK"

The Burnt Dog Entertainment Team has received information from an undisclosed source that a Southern California entertainment concern is allegedly considering the possibility of perhaps constructing a multi-purpose entertainment facility on University property.

Rumor has it that the construction near the Cal Poly baseball field is not for the Engineering South building, as previously believed, but may be for the Entertainment Structure instead.

Sources in the Architecture Department, who wish to remain anonymous, claim that the administration is attempting to conceal the true nature of the building under construction.

Both the campus architect and University President Warren Baker were unavailable for comment.

Script 5 : Talk to Jerry Morales about concert committee reaction.

"ENGINEERING SOUTH RUMORS FLY"

Speculation is running rampant today concerning the recent rumors surrounding what was once called Engineering South. Sources, who still maintain their anonymity, have hinted that the purpose of the large construction project near the baseball field is not what the administration says it is. A question has been raised concerning the funding of the project. Some students have demanded information, saying that they should know how their fees are being spent. Burnt Dog Entertainment has still not been able to contact President Baker or the Campus Architect for comments.

"DAVIS COMES OUT"

BDE: Burnt Dog Entertainment has secured a reliable source to speak on the recent controversy surrounding a mysterious construction project on campus. Butterfield Davis, who has previously requested anonymity, is ~~here now~~ now on the line to tell us more about the controversy near the baseball field ... Mr. Davis, you are assistant to the Campus Architect, and can you tell us what is being built out there?

DAVIS: Well, I really shouldn't be saying anything about this, but I just happened to see plans for that site while I was working on my Senior Project. As far as I can tell, they are building an Engineering South building, but there's something more going on out there ...

BDE: Thank you, Mr. Davis. Burnt Dog Entertainment will continue to bring you the details of this situation as they become available.

WE INTERRUPT THIS PROGRAM FOR AN IMPORTANT BULLETIN FROM THE BURNT DOG ENTERTAINMENT TEAM. I'm

STAY TUNED TO THE SOUND ALTERNATIVE
91 FM FOR MORE IMPORTANT BULLETINS FROM THE BURNT DOG ENTERTAINMENT TEAM. <SNAP>!

"SURVEYORS DISCOVERED"

BDE: Following a lead from Butterfield Davis, aide to the Cal Poly Campus Architect, Burnt Dog Entertainment has discovered several teams of men apparently surveying vacant University land northwest of Highland Drive. Burnt Dog Entertainment interviewed Civil Engineer Merle Norman, who was reluctant to divulge specific information on the project:

NORMAN: Uh ... I can't really talk right now. Look ... I gotta job to do, OK? Uh ... no comment.

BDE: But you can't deny that the University is planning some sort of major structure here?

NORMAN: Uh ... well ...

BDE: Our sources say the University wants to put an entertainment complex here. Is that true?

NORMAN: Uh ... no comment.

BDE: Other rumors talk about a parking lot ...

NORMAN: Look ... I got nothin' ta tell ya, so beat it!

BDE: According to Butterfield Davis, the impracticality of a campus parking lot on the site in question seems to support the claims that the structure under construction is, in fact, an entertainment complex. For Burnt Dog Entertainment, I'm (reporter's name).